"THE FILIGREE BALL."

"The Filigree Ball," a remarkable detective story, by Anna Katherine Green, author of "The Leavenworth Case," "Behind Closed Doors" and other mystery stories, will be printed in The Evening Star as a daily serial, beginning Saturday, June 13.

The scene of "The Filigree Ball" is laid in Washington, giving it an especial interest for readers of The Evening Star. It is a story of absorbing interest and the unraveling of the mystery attending the deaths of several persons in an old Washington mansion will hold the readers' closest attention.

"The Filigree Ball" abounds in dramatic situations, and the interest is maintained to the closing chapter. Strong circumstantial evidence is shown to be at fault, and the web so lightly woven about two of the principal characters is broken by the hand that first sought to convict them.

Readers of The Evening Star have, indeed, a rare treat in store for them. Watch for the opening chapters next Saturday.

Mrs. L. Simonson has the management of the Hotel Richmond at Atlantic City, N. J., this season, and guests to this hostelry are promised first-class cuisine and pleasant rooms.

Star: "Mr. Sullivan again displayed the courage and versatility which have so endeared him. A smooth version." Post: "Mr. Sullivan scored an emphatic success. Production deserving of much praise." Times: "Performance well worth seeing. Mr. Sullivan's impersonation excellent."
